1. Support for Windowing and Docking A window within an application should appear small on screen. The bigger a window is, the less space it occupies on screen. If a window is too big, it will disrupt the workflow of the user. This problem has plagued users for ages. Now, thanks to the windowing feature introduced in AutoCAD R2018, it has become easier to achieve this goal. The windowing feature has three different window modes. They are: Normal, Window and Minimized. Let's briefly review each of the three windowing modes in

---

AutoCAD. Normal Window Mode: This is the default window mode. It is a full screen mode and is used for new files. For example, you open a new file and create a drawing. If you exit from the application, the window goes back to the original size.

Minimized Window Mode: A minimized window is a small window on the screen. It is used to show a display of a drawing or a drawing preview.

Window Mode: A window can be created in different sizes. A window can be resized as per your requirement. You can customize the window size and location. For example, you can move the window to a specific part of the screen. You can drag and drop the window.
